

Noe Industries announces the sale of Ucelia to the Nexteam group

Paris, February 19 2026 – The investment holding company Noe Industries announces the sale of Ucelia to the Nexteam group.

Based in Ussel, Corrèze, Ucelia is specialized in the manufacture of critical and complex aluminium parts dedicated to the aeronautics, aerospace and defense markets. Ucelia works for prestigious clients such as Safran, ArianeGroup, Dassault Aviation, Airbus, or even Pratt & Whitney Canada.

Acquired by Noe Industries in February 2023, the company Constellium Ussel, renamed Ucelia, benefited from major investments that allowed for a profound transformation of processes and production capacity. During this period, the workforce increased from 250 to 330 employees.

French industrial group specialized in the aeronautical and defense sector, the Nexteam group is recognized for its expertise in machining, foundry, mechanized welding and surface treatment of metal parts. The group has 2,200 employees.

The Nexteam group is committed to preserving all jobs and continuing the modernization of the industrial tool. Nexteam also confirmed its willingness to maintain full trust in the current management team of Ucelia.

"Since its entry into the capital at the beginning of 2023, Noe Industries has supported Ucelia in an ambitious industrial transformation," says Pierre Escolier, managing partner of Noe Industries. We have invested heavily in the company's capacity and operational efficiency, whose workforce has grown by more than 20% and turnover by more than 50%, thereby improving operating margin. We are proud of the path accomplished alongside Ucelia and her remarkable team. The project carried out by the Nexteam group offers Ucelia a solid industrial base at the service of strategic and demanding markets, reinforcing French sovereignty objectives in the interest of its employees, clients and territories
